

Wali Lewis

Watercolor Mosaics

Come learn to use your “didn’t work” paintings in a creative way.

Wali's Bio

It was in the second grade, when his teacher made a big deal about a painting of a mountain he did, that Wali Lewis began to identify as an artist. Hearing of the teacher's approval his father bought him a John Gnagy drawing set. That was the beginning of his art education. As a teenager he made many trips to the San Diego Public Library's art section checking out books about his favorite artists. This led to his appreciation of many mediums and styles of art.

After graduating from high school Wali joined the hippies and moved to a remote area in Northern California living with other like-minded people. When not gardening he spent his time building fences, gates, chicken coops and furniture from wood found in the forest or salvaged from old homesteads. An old apple orchard supplied material for crochet hooks and other crafty items.

Leaving the woods Wali made his living as a gardener and landscaper and continued doing art and crafts in his spare time. He kept busy painting, drawing, working with wood and making mosaics.

Now retired Wali has time to devote to his art. The values he developed in the Northern California woods continue to drive his art. Using found and recycled materials and making do with what's at hand supplies him with a path in our consumer society.

Workshop- March 16th

Time: 9:00 am- 4:00 pm

Where: 2960 Wolf Pack Wy. North Logan. Green Canyon High School

Price is 30$ for members and $50 for non-members

For member code or any other questions, contact Marsha Dennis @ marshadennis21@yahoo.com 801-721-5051

Allie Zeyer

Learn how to use Gouache

Date: April 13th at 9:00 am -4:00 pm

Where- Green Canyon High School. 2960 Wolf Pack Wy, North Logan

$150 for members and $174 for non-members

For members code or for any other questions, contact Marsha Dennis @ marshadennis21@yahoo.com 801-721-5051

Allie is a successful artist based in Idaho. She has won many awards, is a known plein air painter, has been a guest artist on the Undraped Artist podcast and a guest on the Art School Live with Eric Rhoads. She currently works in gouache and oils but has a great deal of experience with watercolors. This workshop will show you how to incorporate gouache in your watercolor techniques.